The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, JANUARY 3RD, 1889.

PUBLIC attention in England has lately been monopolised by the PARWELL Commission which has overshadowed all other topics. Th.

inquiry bids fair to rival, if not exceed the TICHBORNE trial in length, and until it is concluded any political forecast must be more than usually uncertain. If complicity in crime be proved against the Irish members, the disgust of the nation with Mr. GLADSTONE's Parnellite connection will be sufficient to give the Conservative and Unionist party a long lease of power. If, on the other hand, the verdict be against the Times, and Mr. PARWELL and his followers leave the court "without a stain upon their character," the effect will tell very much in favour of the Liberal and Separatist party in their position before the country. In the by-elections which have recently taken place the contest has turned on the question of Home Rule, but Mr. GLADSTONE is raising other issues to rally around him wavering Radicals and spread confusion amongst the Liberal Unionists. The latter still sit on the opposition side of the house, though the leaders of the opposition objects to their presence there. Mr. GLADSTONE, however, on the fresh issues he is raising may secure their votes to defeat the Government and so lead up to a dissolution. As a political tactician he stands unrivaled, and his present move will not detract from his reputation in that respect. Speaking at Limehouse the other day, he unfolded a programme including triennial Parliaments and free education. How many other items the programme included we are not aware, as we have only the brief telegraphic summary of the speech reproduced in our main news from a Ceylon paper. Free education alone would be sufficient to stir up party strife almost as much as the Irish question. A Royal Commission on elementary education which recently completed its inquiry presented a majority and a minority Report, the former being in favour of giving aid from the rates to denominational schools, while the minority report is in favour of the compromise of 1870 being maintained. The appearance of the report was followed by an Easter Hall demonstration in favour of the settlement of 1870. The Times, in an article depreciating this agitation, says the majority Report of the Royal Commission was undoubtedly a provocative document, and that it were to be adopted by the Government over the union of the Unionist party would be rudely shaken; but while the Report has not been followed by any serious attack, the proper attitude of those who defend the position, says the Times, is not one of alarm and defiance, but of confidence and calm. The ball having been set in motion, however, Mr. GLADSTONE and his party are apparently not content to stand on the defensive, where defence would be easy, but have resolved to carry the battle into the enemy's ground and to boldly declare for a disturbance of the 1870 compromise in the opposite direction to that advocated by the majority of the Royal Commission. All the sectarian strife which preceded the settlement under Mr. ROBERTSON's celebrated Bill will therefore be revived, and the contest will earnestly fought out. Free education means also unsectarian education, and against absolutely free schools the denominational voluntary schools would be unable to maintain their existence. On tactical grounds Mr. GLADSTONE will, we think, be a gainer by his new departure. The Home Rule question, vital as it is, was doubtless getting somewhat monotonous as a subject for speechifying upon at public meetings; some other topic of interest was wanted, and the majority report of the Royal Commission gave a suggestion which has been promptly seized upon. Mr. GLADSTONE's support comes from the Nonconformists. Some of these are Unionists, but will be attracted by the cry of free education. Mr. GLADSTONE no doubt argues that in the confusion that will be caused by placing two great issues before the country at the same time he will be the gainer and his opponents the losers.

The delivery of the French mail was begun at 11.15 p.m. yesterday.

Mr. E. B. Michell, the legal adviser of the Saxon Government, has left Bangkok for Singapore, en route to England.

The Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's steamer Pozsony, from Trieste, left Singapore on Tuesday morning for this port.

Messrs. Hall &amp; Holt's have issued a useful English and Chinese calendar printed in large type and very suitable for an office wall.

The French man-of-war Chasseur, under the command of Captain Baker, arrived at Colombo on the 16th December bound from Tonkin to Hongkong.From an address delivered by Dr. Williamson to one of the missionary societies on the other day, we (St. James's Gazette) learn that the amount and variety of religious enterprise in China is such as to be equally embarrassing both to the missionary and the proselyte. It seems that missionaries are so numerous that it is quite difficult for native converts to select their teachers and schools. In Hongkong alone there appear to be seven different denominations; in fact, Seven foreign missions for Old Testament. Seven little churches with seven little "sires." Seven forms of meeting, seven sets of rules. Seven week sessions and seven Sunday-schools. Seven buildings, each costing three times the cost. What a lot of energy in China must be lost!The P. M. steamer City of Rio de Janeiro, with mail, etc., from San Francisco to the 8th ultimo, arrived at Yokohama, and leaves for this port to-day.The Agents (Messrs. Siemsen & Co.) inform us that the D. R. steamer Hesperia, from Hamburg, left Singapore at 10 a.m. yesterday for this port.Mr. J. W. Macmillan, the editor of the N. C. Daily News, we learn from the Mercury, has been fortunate enough to win £20,000 in the Manila lottery.

A very useful pocket diary and almanac has been issued by the Standard Life Assurance Company, for which the Borsone Company are the local agents.

The Agents (Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.) inform us that the Indo-China steamer Principe de Galicia, left Singapore on the 31st ult. for this port.

The new Chinese Judge of Hongkong is to be Mr. Fielding Clarke, who is at present at Natal. He is expected to arrive here about the end of the month.

Sir Thomas Maitland, late Premier of Queensland, with Lady Maitland and three daughters, arrived by the M. W. steamer Afghan yesterday en route for Japan.

The following is the Order of the Day for this afternoon's meeting of the Sanitary Board:

By-laws under subsection 10 of section 10 of the Public Health Ordinance, 1887, regarding the vacating and disinfection of infected premises.

A native paper mentions that the price of bean-oil is rising daily at Canton, owing to the very small shipments from Newchwang the year on account of the floods. Groundnut-oil is now standing at 10 taels a catty, which is higher than it was for ten years.

Kukow publishes the following extract from the German Consular Report for the month of Shanghai:—A great change for the worse has taken place in the German share of business in supplying the Chinese Government with military material, both for peace and war requirements. Formerly these contracts were negotiated by inferior Government officials and for the most part exclusively with German firms, who dealt chiefly with the Chinese Government.

But now the Chinese Government has discharged his dutiful Secretary and furthered the interests of the Society. By considered it was a proper time to present H. with a more substantial mark of esteem, and had now much pleasure in presenting Mr. Jokken with a cheque as a token of the esteem which he is held by the members of the Bar Natal. The Attorney-General made the presentation, and to his regret the tumults that ensued compelled him to withdraw. Mr. Jokken thanked them for their kind expression of opinion, and said he always had had a good relationship with the Chinese Government.

He is now engaged in the task of helping to bring about the fall of the houses.

Kukow publishes the following extract from the German Consular Report for the month of Shanghai:—A great change for the worse has taken place in the German share of business in supplying the Chinese Government with military material, both for peace and war requirements. Formerly these contracts were negotiated by inferior Government officials and for the most part exclusively with German firms, who dealt chiefly with the Chinese Government.

But now the Chinese Government has discharged his dutiful Secretary and furthered the interests of the Society. By considered it was a proper time to present H. with a more substantial mark of esteem, and had now much pleasure in presenting Mr. Jokken with a cheque as a token of the esteem which he is held by the members of the Bar Natal. The Attorney-General made the presentation, and to his regret the tumults that ensued compelled him to withdraw. Mr. Jokken thanked them for their kind expression of opinion, and said he always had had a good relationship with the Chinese Government.

He is now engaged in the task of helping to bring about the fall of the houses.

of the $2,000 was actually paid at the date of the bond. At the time of its execution, he was successful in having about a live tiger in the possession of some one or other. The animal, a large and sturdy one, was purchased for $126, but—misfortune never comes singly—the infuriated beast succeeds in effecting its escape, carrying away with it a girl connected with the house. The shouts and shrieks of the crowd that follow the tiger in its track drive it to such a state that it dashes its unfortunate victim.

A writer transferred from Yunnan to Canton and employed by the Vicerey's Yamen died on the 26th December from the effects of a serious attack of rheumatism.

A man invites two of his friends to dine with him at a restaurant outside the western gate; after a sumptuous repast the two friends take their leave, but two men who had perceived that they had some money on them followed them closely, and as soon as they arrived in a quiet spot fell upon them and tried to rob them.

One of them was stabbed, and the other by dint of shooting attracted some passers-by. It is presumed that the attack was prompted more by a desire of vengeance than of plunder.

A wealthy man in Fuzhou is visited by a few robbers, who succeed in carrying away property to the amount of thirty taels. His house had not long ago been the scene of another robbery.

On the 23rd a notorious robber was arrested in the suburbs.

The barracks at Kwang-chin for the accommodation of the bannermen have to be repaired consequent upon a consultation on the subject held between the Vicerey and the Manchu General.

The judge is continuing his raid on the Pak-kuo-piu lottery shops. Fathaw has been visited by his amanuensis, who are closing the shops right and left. Bribery will, it is presumed, soon have all difficulties and open the doors.

A man while in a state of intoxication breaks and knocks about everything he can lay hand on in a wine shop. The owner and his assistants expostulate and are about to treat him harshly, when some bystanders remonstrand that no notice should be paid to him that he should be left to get over the effect of the wine. When the man comes to his senses, he makes ample compensation.

To-morrow at ten a.m. the judge will assume the seals of Commissioner of Finances.

A proclamation issued by the Vicerey notifies that the seals will be closed from the 16th of last month at 10 a.m. (20th January) to 1st noon (21st at noon (20th February), 1883.

RICE MILLING AT BANGKOK.

The number of new rice mills that are in course of erection and others that are being arranged for is extraordinary, and speaks volumes for the increase of rice milling and the general prosperity of Bangkok in the future. Beginning on the east bank of the river nearest the city, we notice that Mr. Black is erecting an additional mill of six hullers and four parboilers for Mr. Poh Chai Soo. The building is nearly finished, and the foundations ready to receive machinery. Further down Mr. Black is superintending the erection of another mill of same size for Messrs. Bow and Son. The whole of the machinery for both these mills has been supplied from Messrs. Douglas & Grant, Kirkcaldy. Next comes the Bangkok Rice Mill Company's ground, where the company intend shortly to commence operations. Plans have also been received from Mr. Caldwell for the erection of a mill for the same firm, and will be erected by the Horne Co. (Limited), to be situated at the site of the old mill, the intention being to remove the old machinery. The new building will be entirely of timber and corrugated iron. The mill consists of eight hullers and eight parboilers driven by a jet condensing engine, the diameter of the cylinder being 22 inches, and the stroke 6 inches. Steam will be supplied by two Lancashire boilers at a pressure of 20 lbs. The whole of the machinery will be supplied by Messrs. Douglas & Grant, Kirkcaldy.

According to Osman Digna's letter, Lado, the Mahdi's lieutenant, declares that the white travellers it none other than Stanley, and that Emin's men delivered Emin and Stanley to the Mahdi with letters on them.

LONDON, 14th December. In the House of Commons, Mr. Grosvenor, replying to a question, said that Government would do their utmost to ascertain whether there was any truth in the statements made in Osman Digna's letter to General Grenfell, and whether any hope of negotiating for the release of the captives. It was impossible in the meanwhile to ascertain the operations for the relief of Slatin, but they would be hurried before Monday, when the question will be debated in the House of Commons.

THE NIKKIN AFFAIR. ALLEGHABAD, 7th December. On the 26th ultimo, and was to have started for Phari on the 4th instant. A Chinese messenger reached Gantong with a letter from the Amboin, who sent forward a Secretary of State to inquire the cause of the delay. He hopes to meet Mr. Duff on the 14th. Buddhist monks at Lhasa are trying to prevent the Amboin from negotiating direct with the British Government.

MR. GLADSTONE AT LIMBSTER: HIS POLITICAL PROGRAMME. LONDON, 16th December.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking yesterday at Limbster, sharply complained of the Unionists sitting on the Opposition benches in Parliament.

As regards Sussia he said that neither the interests of England nor those of Egypt required the retention of such a trumpery place.

He then propounded a political programme, which included a triennial Parliament and free education.
